China recognizes that there remains a limit to China's scope for global political influence. The regional context, in fact, provides China immediate political